My dear Mr Joaness.

I cannot tell you how sorry I am to be constantly troubling you with petitions; but unfortunately I have no friends in England but yourself: I have entirely them all, This is one of the unhappy results of old age.

The enclosed is a letter of a Clergyman (of high position, a friend of ours) who is most anxious it should be delivered personally to the Count de Morella, attaché to the Spanish Embassy in London. For this commission you will be kind enough to employ a person on whose punctuality you can entirely depend. When you know that the letter has reached its destination have the goodness to send me a line. I see there is a new Edition of Keats's Works by W Arnold. Is there any thing new, that has hitherto not been published, and does it contain the portraits of my Brothers.

I have not been able to obtain them from America. The conduct of Mr Speed is very strange, and very unkind.

I have used up all the certificates, will you be so good as to send me two or three, and also advance me the three months pension at the end of the month.

With kindest remembrances to all, believe me to remain

Very sincerely Yours
Fanny Keats de Lisser
